

PETEY DINK—HE DIDN'T HIT THE SPOT OR THE BULLET WOULD HAVE STUCK IN IT

TENER IS FIRM IN RESOLVE TO QUIT NATIONAL LEAGUE

Gov. John K. Tener is through as president of the National League. There can be no question of his sincerity in the announcement made during the recent rumpus with Joan McCraw. His firm set jaw, his teeth together, Tener declared that was all he had to say.

"I am not a candidate for re-election," he declared. "I refuse to be questioned further."

And that's all he would say. Several persons, remembering that Tener was governor of Pennsylvania when the National league club owners sought him out and made him their executive, questioned Tener as to what he might do if the National league should unanimously request that he retain his office.

"I won't say a word," he declared. And there the argument on cross-examination ended.

Tener has a lot of business interests. Before he became governor of Pennsylvania, or before he became connected with politics at all to any considerable extent, he was president of one of the nation's most prosperous small-town banks. That business calls him. In addition he has holdings of coal land in Pennsylvania that are very valuable. He is able to devote only a small share of his time to these interests, and private enterprises are being sacrificed by him to a certain extent, for the good of baseball.

Under these conditions Tener can hardly be blamed for chucking his present job overboard. He has had four years of trouble, has conducted a clean administration, and will leave the league—if it does finally come to that—with a fine reputation.

Tener is a man who came from the ranks of baseball, passed through the early grind of vicissitudes which usually bring man's life, became a member of the national house of representatives, was elected governor of one of the nation's most powerful states, and passed into the third grade of his public career as president of the oldest institution in baseball—the National league.

More than 500 men took part in minor sports at the University of Wisconsin during the first semester this year. The teams and classes in-

MILWAUKEE TEAM HERE THIS WEEK

Mike Neunen's Players Come on Sunday—Cards to Retrieve for Loss to Hats Previously.

Mike Neunen's Barnhart Hats journey over from Milwaukee Sunday to meet the Cards at the Driving Park. Since the last visit of the Cream City dealers Neunen has been constantly bolstering and a complete new team will be seen in the field against the Cardinals this week.

The local crew will be composed of about the same aggregation which has proven such a success for the past two weeks—even though the league leading Gossings nosed out with a 2 to 1 victory last Sunday.

Plans will do the hurling and "Hieft" Delaney will be on the accepting section. Opposing will be Felscher and Kalkamp.

The Hats defeated the Cards the last time, but they will have to play better ball to repeat. With the greatly strengthened lineup the local team is bound to start winning.

That Milwaukee will be the first victim is the hope of every local fan and every member of the squad.

SOMETHING DOING.

There will be something doing from now on in Rock county and in every community within this great War is Over and "Johnny" Comes Marching Home Again. "To the Girl He Left Behind Him." The bugles will blow many a call to reveille, to mess, to sick call, and saddest of all, to taps, before we have peace across the water. The first contingent of our troops are there now and others are to follow. As a nation we are in this war to combat Prussianism and the Imperial Government of Germany, that seeks to dominate the civilized world. We have cast our lot with other nations who seek the same results, and until this has been accomplished we will continue to pour our troops into Europe to fight the cause of humanity against barbarism.

Rock county has just emerged from a Red Cross campaign. It had hardly recovered from the Liberty bond crusade, and now today the federal government asks us to enlist seventy thousand men for the regular army service and recruit all our national guard units to the war maximum. It will be money or men for some time to come. Rock county must furnish both. This is no time for shirking a responsibility. We must face the grim reality we, as a nation, are at war, and we must meet the consequences.

The selective draft is soon to be made. The young men chosen by this method will first be sent to fill out the ranks of the regular army, and then into the various guard units, and are not complete. The men whose names are drawn will have no choice where they go, into the regular army, or into the national guard, or into the national army for them. This latter force will comprise a half million men to start with, then other half million units will be called into existence, and later others. It is estimated that the average young man between twenty-one and twenty-eight who is registered will have plenty of time to serve in the army, in some capacity, before this war is over. This first draft will be only the starting wedge to accustom the people to army enlistments. The advocates of the volunteer system need look no further than the reports of the army and navy departments to learn the necessity of the great state of Wisconsin sent eighty thousand men out to the Civil war. It will take more than moral persuasion to uproot a considerable number of the young men of today from the thought that if they have to go to war they would prefer to be officers, and if not officers they will wait to be drafted.

There are two military units in Rock county and one separate platoon that has been—or will be—added to a Dane county military unit. But few men have enlisted in the regular army or the national guard company of the county. These enlistments will count on the grand total to be drafted; it will lessen the total. Seeking Company M of Janesville is looking for enlistees to take the place of the Edgerton platoon that have been taken away owing to military necessity, and it is to be hoped that before tomorrow night a sufficient number of young men will have signified their intention of enlisting to bring the quota up to the required number.

There is going to be something doing in Rock county from now on. First we will say good bye to our national guardsmen when they are called to the state camp. Next we will say farewell to the selective draft men, and meantime we will shake hands with those who enlist in the marines, the radio corps, the hospital units and all the other military activities which are to comprise the great American army. Our women can knit for the navy league, can fill comfort bags for the soldier boys, and those of the men who are too old to go, must do their bit by sharing the great expense this war brings upon us.

Congress may make this or that law for our guidance, but it is upon the fathers and mothers and the younger brothers and sisters that the blow is to fall. We must prepare ourselves for it. Think you parents? Had you rather see your boy in some regiment, or brigade where he did not have a personal friend, a mere number as it were, or would you prefer to know he was among friends, with his own home town fellows? Enlist in the national guard and you are with your home town friends. Wait to be drafted and you do not know where you will be sent. Which do you prefer?

FREE SERVICE.

One of the most encouraging features of the recent Liberty bond campaign was the amount of free service that was given. It has in the recent past been an ugly fact that people expect to be paid for so many services public causes which they should contribute for the public good.

Formerly a great many public enterprises used to be promoted with gratuitous labor. The old timers got out with their spades and water pots and planted trees along the highways on their own time. They never thought of asking pay for it. Now we call on the municipality to do that kind of thing at public cost. If a man had a place in the road, he would get out and mend it out of public spirit. Perhaps the possibility of that has gone by in these days when motors are tearing our roads all to pieces. But the old spirit of helpfulness in such matters was very praiseworthy.

In the country districts they say that the cattle shows and county fairs were started in gratuitous service. Farmers would give grain and hay and their own time. Now most of such services have to be paid for.

The war is bringing the hearts of the people closer together and reviving the old spirit of community service. The newspapers did their bit in the Liberty bond campaign, by contributing millions of inches of free space that cost them good houses and financial and bond selling. The selling of securities is their stock in trade on which they depend for a living. At the call of the government, they gave free service and put a vast amount of work into the proposition. Many of them have sat up nights handling the detail of the thing. Keeping track of all the installment payments that are to be made will extend the task over many months. It is a fine spirit. If we can apply it more in our community life, it will make possible many projects heretofore regarded as merely dreams.

After wondering why a destroyer can't spot a submarine hiding in one thousand square miles of sea water, some of our men have to get their wives to help them locate their Sunday shirt in the bureau drawer.

A look at the young women on city streets suggests that the latter part of the program for Clean Up and Paint Up week is much better observed than the first.

The married men can't enlist because they have their wives to take care of, and their wives can't go to nurses because they have their husbands to look after.

As the result of these bone dry commencements, no doubt some people will lose their keen interest in investigating the scholastic education of our youth.

The people who complain because the newspapers don't publish the names, and usually the same ones who kick if their names are put in the paper.

About now many people leave quiet city streets for rest out in the country, where they find honking motor cars, clouds of dust, and cut-out mufflers.

A very small portion of that $350,000,000 that the food speculators are said to have made can hire some very smart talkers down at Washington.

The July Fourth celebrators are looking around for bonfire material having value enough to the owners to constitute a really patriotic display.

Everyone should do his bit, but that does not necessarily mean getting up at 3 a. m. to mow the lawn while your neighbors try to sleep.

If the people had their way, a portion of the prospective bumper hay crop would be used for feeding jailed food speculators.

After a food speculator has made a million or two, he feels quite patriotic to be the owner of one or two Liberty bonds.

A convincing evidence of the fertility of the soil is given by the weeds which many of the gardeners are raising.

Many people entertain entire confidence in the ability of George to assume all responsibility for this war.

A lot of the army contractors aren't worrying any where they are going to get their war taxes from.

BROOKLYN RED CROSS IS WELL ORGANIZED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Brooklyn, Wis., June 28.—The Red Cross campaign was very successfully carried on in this village and vicinity last week. A few weeks ago a Red Cross auxiliary was organized of upwards of fifty members and the ladies have been meeting in the high school building to make bandages and other hospital supplies. At a mass meeting held at the M. E. church on the Sunday evening of the 24th, a committee consisting of the following members were elected: A. R. Dahms, chairman, Owen Roberts, Rev. J. W. Peterson, P. A. Haynes, Rev. J. W. Barnett. This committee proceeded early in the week to mail letters to the heads of the various families in the village and the vicinity soliciting their co-operation in the work. In addition to this auto loads of the Red Cross ladies went to the surrounding school districts where meetings were held in the school houses and the ladies presented the claims of the Red Cross and gave instructions for doing the work. As a result of these efforts Red Cross societies have been organized in Rutland and Dayton and a local in Brooklyn township has begun work in co-operation with the local society. On Saturday evening the campaign was closed with a mass meeting at the hall where the band members presented patriotic selections and Mrs. Alfred Dennis of Madison and Hon. Burt Williams gave splendid addresses. The soliciting was done at this meeting. Three hundred dollars was the amount which the committee in charge decided would be a good contribution, according to the fund for the village, but the fund raised a few dollars over the five hundred mark.

Another event which was not directly connected with the Red Cross society, but along the same line, was an entertainment given in the parlors of the M. E. church Friday evening by the physical culture class under the direction of Mrs. F. H. Anderson. Admission of fifteen cents was charged and the proceeds which amounted to over twelve dollars will be used to purchase yarns with which to knit for the U. S. sailors and soldiers.

Mrs. Dean Smith and infant son have returned from Beloit where the child has been taking treatments at the hospital.

Mrs. Evaline Hubbard is visiting at the home of her son, Ernest Hubbard and family at Goodell, Iowa.

Lawrence Kachel of Whitewater was a guest Sunday at the G. E. Waite home.

Miss Nettie Peterson has returned from Missoula, Montana, where she will spend her summer vacation at the home of her mother, Mrs. Nels Peterson.

Mrs. Virgil Hopkins has returned from Madison where she has been taking treatments at the sanitarium. Miss Ethel Roberts returned the first of the week from a visit with relatives in Lodi.

SERVING IN FRANCE

Marvin R. Brown and Victor F. Bleasdale Are With American Fighting Forces Near Battle Front.

Two Janesville men, Victor F. Bleasdale and Marvin R. Brown, are with the American fighting men near the battle front in France. Bleasdale is a corporal in the fifteenth company of marines, with which he has been serving for two years, while Brown is a private in the same contingent, having enlisted in Milwaukee on April 11, last.

Bleasdale is the son of James Bleasdale, R. P. D. 5, Janesville, and Edward R. Bleasdale, R. P. D. 100 Pleasant street. In announcement from the United States marine corps recruiting bureau at Washington has the following to say of Bleasdale:

"He has displayed such marked military ability and daring that he was among the first to be chosen to 'do his bit' overseas. The marines who have been selected to represent their country first in the war for democracy are proud of the recognition bestowed upon them and they go with the best wishes of the entire nation."

"The 'Soldiers of the Sea' are the oldest branch of our military service, and they have a splendid record. Their activities date back to 1775, and since that time they have been first to fight for America in many campaigns. The local men have already proven their mettle and will doubtless continue to uphold the honor of the marines—Always Faithful."

CHOOSERS TO BE SHOT RATHER THAN HANG

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 29.—Howard De Weese, sentenced to death for the slaying of his wife last September, has chosen to be shot rather than hanged at the law's hands, July 6. He is resigned to his fate and says he hopes that no steps will be taken to gain a new trial or a reprieve.

The laws of Utah provide that a person sentenced to death may choose the way to die. Before deciding upon being shot, De Weese asked a prison guard questions relative to the details of the bullets, stating that he did not want the marksmen to "play" with him but to make death instantaneous.

De Weese eloped with the wife of Harry W. Fisher, haberdasher, from New York. They went to Reno and Pacific coast cities to live. Last September the pair who had married at Reno, after Mrs. Fisher obtained a divorce, came to Salt Lake City. A few days later neighbors became suspicious and the apartment was entered. They discovered the body of Mrs. De Weese, her features smashed by a pillow, which lay on the bed beside her.

A few months later De Weese surrendered to the Chicago police. In the interval between his surrender and trial, he confessed to numerous burglaries and boasted that he was the greatest diamond thief of the last decade. He asserted that his wife was slain by robbers with whom he formerly associated, who had tracked him and his wife to Salt Lake City and, when he was out of the city, murdered to obtain $12,000 worth of jewels, which De Weese said he had stolen.

De Weese was sentenced to death for the slaying of his wife last September, has chosen to be shot rather than hanged at the law's hands, July 6. He is resigned to his fate and says he hopes that no steps will be taken to gain a new trial or a reprieve.

The laws of Utah provide that a person sentenced to death may choose the way to die. Before deciding upon being shot, De Weese asked a prison guard questions relative to the details of the bullets, stating that he did not want the marksmen to "play" with him but to make death instantaneous.

De Weese eloped with the wife of Harry W. Fisher, haberdasher, from New York. They went to Reno and Pacific coast cities to live. Last September the pair who had married at Reno, after Mrs. Fisher obtained a divorce, came to Salt Lake City. A few days later neighbors became suspicious and the apartment was entered. They discovered the body of Mrs. De Weese, her features smashed by a pillow, which lay on the bed beside her.

A few months later De Weese surrendered to the Chicago police. In the interval between his surrender and trial, he confessed to numerous burglaries and boasted that he was the greatest diamond thief of the last decade. He asserted that his wife was slain by robbers with whom he formerly associated, who had tracked him and his wife to Salt Lake City and, when he was out of the city, murdered to obtain $12,000 worth of jewels, which De Weese said he had stolen.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, June 29.—Arthur A. Morgan and Mrs. Amelia Lentz were married June 26 at Milwaukee. Mr. Morgan has been here the past two years, being a partner in the Morgan & Smith dry goods store. They will make their home here after August 1st.

Summer school opened this week and the enrollment has been 175. This is practically the same number that attended here last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rogers have gone to Madison and are attending school there. Joseph Koupi and family have moved into the Ryan house, on Prairie street.

Russell Schneider is visiting his grandmother in Lima this week.

Miss Frieda Wolfe of this city and Maxwell William Wolke of Johnson town were married Wednesday by Rev. Samuel Lange, at his home on Main street. The young people were attended by Miss Elsie Wolke of Fort Atkinson and Mr. Bellman of Delavan. The groom is a young farmer at Johnston and after their wedding journey they will make their home on the farm here.

Red Cross subscriptions did not come up to the $2,500 share but will be met as there is about $3,000 in the fund and some more territory to cover. La Grange sent in three hundred and fifty dollars. There are many examples of real generosity and not all represented by large gifts; some small gifts meant real sacrifice.

The fire department was called to the P. Tyre home on North Prairie blow torch had set the wood work in the cellar on fire.

The ball game here Sunday will be with Fort Atkinson. The schedule has been changed between these two teams for the next two games, and instead of Whitewater going to Fort Atkinson, the team there comes here.

Lathrop will be the mound artist for the locals and much confidence is placed on him as he did the trick for us at Palmyra last week.

There must be something in the reports that manager Matheson and fielder Cron do not get along, for there is some fire where there is so much smoke. Two weeks ago it was rumored that a trade was on that would send Cron to the St. Louis Cardinals. Nothing came of it, but now comes a story that he may be transferred to the Chicago Cubs in exchange for Charley Dean and Fred Williams.

NEW FIRE MOTOR TO BE HERE SOON

Booster Pump Recently Purchased by City Will be Installed in Few Days.—Shipped Tuesday.

Janesville's new fifty-three hundred dollar motor fire fighting apparatus will be here shortly. In response to a query from City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund to the American La France company, the concern which has the contract, the machine was shipped from the manufacturing plant on Tuesday. It was stated in a reply which Mr. Hammarlund received today. It should be in Janesville and installed in the west side station either tomorrow or else early next week, city officials opined today. The contract called for delivery July 1.

HOLLAND WARSHIP IN AMERICAN PORT

An Atlantic port, June 29.—A Dutch armored cruiser, the first warship flying the flag of Holland to come into this port for more than ten years, arrived here today and will remain several days. It is reported she will act as convoy for a number of Holland passenger and freight vessels now about ready to leave American ports.

Pitcher Jack Warhop, one time Yankee, started this season with the Baltimore Internationals, has landed with the Toronto club of the same league.

How's This? Corns Lift Out With Fingers—No Pain!

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese product your foot troubles can be quickly ended.

Feeling as this new preparation is called, is said to shroud up hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes so that they can be lifted out easily with the fingers. It's wonderful. Think of it, only touch or two of Ice-Mint and real comfort is yours.

There is not one bit of pain or soreness when applying it or afterwards and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation right out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the Japanese secret of a healthy, little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who have to stand on their feet all day. Try it. Just ask in any drug store for a small jar of Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot comfort really is. There is nothing like it.

"Peggy Series."

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Metro has signed Alice MacChesney, formerly considered Chicago's most popular school girl, and who came to Essanay directly from her high school desk. In the past two years she has appeared in support of Henry B. Waltham, Bryant Washburn, Richard Travers, Eddie Arnold, and other stars. Miss MacChesney will be an insigne lead and her contract is said to be for a long time. Considerable faith is placed in the abilities of their newest acquisition, and as she has declared her talents in high school theatricals, this faith may be well founded.

STARDUST

Georgie Stone and Thelma Salter are to be co-starred in a new play featuring them. This is the first time these youngsters have been actually featured in a photoplay, although they have had prominent roles in numerous pictures.

The nature of the story has not yet been divulged, but the juvenile luminaries will be supported by J. F. Lockney, Laura Seay, Jack Livingston, Walter Perry, Gertrude Claire and Leo Willis. That fairies and fairyland will figure prominently in the piece is indicated by the elaborate and beautiful settings being constructed on one of the stages.

A producer announces "When a Man Sees Red" as William Farnum's greatest picture. It is adapted from the novel, "The Painted Lady," by Larry Evans. Scenes in Honolulu, San Francisco and the South Sea Islands are shown in this production. "His Speedy Finish" shows how difficult it is to depart from this life. It is a comedy of contrast, for poisoning, hanging, shooting and drowning all figure in the funmaking. All this is caused by a young man disappointed in love.

Alma Hanlon plays the leading role in a new production, "When You and I were Young." It is scheduled for release the early part of July.

June Caprice's latest production "Patsy" is scheduled for release soon. Little Jane Lee and Harry Hilliard support Miss Caprice in this picture.

"Two Little Impe" is the name of the picture shortly to be released in which Jane and Katherine Lee play the leads.

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey have had a split-up. And some mean old cast director is to blame! But Marc Mac Dermott doesn't mind; he's going to be her leading man in the future.

Alice Brady's newest picture is called "A Self-Made Widow." Alice is the habilitant of mourning, presents a picture of loveliness sure to popularize widowhood as an institution.

Carlyle Blackwell plays two half brothers in "The Price of Pride"—one a reputable easterner, the other a rugged westerner, by whom a pair of Colt forty-fours are not regarded as purely decorative articles of apparel.

Charles Chaplin, it is said, responded to the selective draft call and is willingly waiting his turn to declare himself.

EXTENSIVE COAL FIELDS IN NEW MEXICO SOLD

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
New York, June 29.—The extensive coal fields of the Victor American Fuel company located in the Gallup district of New Mexico have been sold to Hayden Stone & Company, for a consideration of approximately $3,000,000, according to an announcement made here today by the purchasing company.

The New Mexico property was purchased, it is said, for the account of the Ray Consolidated company, the Chino Copper company and the American Smelting and Refining company.

Fred Fulton's recent victory over Sam Langford in the seventh round of a bout at Boston, was no great surprise to those who remembered that Gunboat Smith once regained much lost prestige by scoring a "victory" over Langford in a Boston ring. The next time this pair met, however, the black man fought in an entirely different manner and handled his erstwhile conqueror like a child, knocking him cold in a few rounds.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have not been going with a young man for the past month as I used to. Before then I went with him for two years and we were secretly engaged. I quit going with him because I thought I did not love him any more. Now I can't say I love him, and I can't say I don't.

A couple of months ago he left town, but he wrote to me once a week. While he was away I met a few more boys and among them was one I liked and now I think I love him. He asked me to go to the theatre with him once while he was away. I went. He asked me to take me to places, but I always refused—sometimes I couldn't go, and there were times I didn't want to. He thought I was strange, and so he questioned some of my boy friends. This made me mad, so I told him I wouldn't go with him any longer. He talked to him nicely, but still he isn't satisfied. He wants me to make up and consider our broken engagement. I don't know what to do because sometimes I love him, sometimes I only like him. There have been times I have hated him. He constantly talks to others about me and when he is with me he seems sad. I really feel sorry for him and want to make up, but still I want your advice first.

Please consider this thoughtfully, because I know it will break his heart if I say no, and he may carry out some of the threats he has made. Besides, I am growing to love him more each day.

AN ARDENT READER. A. J. M.

You do not love the man enough.

to marry him, or you would not, be doubtful. His heart will not be permanently broken and he will probably not carry out any threats. Others have been disappointed. Love before, you know, and they have managed to live through the trying ordeals and the end have come out of it and been perfectly happy. It will be far better to disappoint him now than to encourage him and then turn him down again later.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two girls of seventeen. We wear silk hose all the time. What can we do to avoid runners, and what can we do to mend them? They are getting too expensive to buy a pair every day.

(2) Does it show good taste to wear ribbon laces in your white boots of the color of the dress you are wearing or is it too fresh?

DIMPLES AND BLUE EYES. (1) One expensive pair of silk hose will wear much longer than several pairs of cheap hose that it is not economy to buy the cheap ones. You will not have trouble with runners if you buy a heavier and better quality of silk. You can do nothing but darn the runners. Be careful to catch the loop at both top and bottom that is raveling.

(2) I don't show good taste, or good style.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am fourteen years old. Am I too young to wear high heel shoes? (2) Am I too young to go to a country dance with my older sister and her beau?

(3) At what age should a girl get married? (4) What will cure dandruff?

A. J. M.

(1) No. (2) Yes. (3) From twenty to twenty-five. (4) Rub it in your head every night.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Which is the proper color to trim a baby boy's clothes with, light blue or pink, or doesn't it matter?

Blue is supposed to be the color for boys, but it doesn't matter which you use.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt will answer personally all letters pertaining to matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper, if accompanied by a two cent stamp.)

Do not look at your watch or appear hurried during a call. Old English lettering on script are generally considered best style for visiting cards. It is not necessary to leave a card every time you call upon a woman you visit so often. You need not leave one if you are called at home unless you are calling after a birth or death in the family, or after an entertainment to which you have been invited. Yes, a delicate perfume on your cards and stationery is very nice. The best way to accomplish this is to place a small sachet-bag in which your cards and stationery are kept. The sachet should be placed in the box and use very little of the sachet. Never sprinkle it onto the box, as it is likely to soil the cards; always enclose it in a silk bag.

GEORGIANA: When lunching in a public place with a gentleman, a lady leads the way to the table, she cannot, therefore, follow him to his chair. She should go to a chair on the farther side of the table she selects, and if the gentleman is familiar to good form, he will follow her closely so as to be on hand to place it for her.

Household Hints

GETTING GREATEST VALUE

The following suggestions on getting the most food for one's money are from United States department of Agriculture Farmers' Bulletin 808, "How to Select Foods."

Use cereals (flour, meal, corn, breakfast foods, etc.) freely, taking pains to prepare them with grease and to vary the kind used from day to day if necessary to keep people from tiring of them.

Remember that a quart of whole milk is a good deal better than a quart of skim milk, and that a quart of whole milk is a good deal better than a quart of whole milk.

Do not be ashamed to plan closely. Thrift in food means providing enough food, neither too little nor too much.

Notice carefully how much of such staples as flour, sugar, milk, cooking fat, etc., is used each week for a month, and see if there are any ways of cutting down the quantity needed.

Buy nonperishable materials in quantities if better prices can be secured, and there is a good storage place in the home. Neighbors can sometimes club together to get lower rates.

Estimate carefully how much of an article is needed for a week, and lay in a supply, then see that none is wasted by careless handling.

Try to make the dishes served of such size that there will be enough left over to use in another meal, and no unnecessary table and plate waste.

Do not be above noticing whether any food is thrown away, and if so, the garbage, which always shows how thriftily food is used in a household.

Many inexpensive materials can be made attractive and the diet can be pleasantly varied by a wise use of different flavorings.

"Picky" tastes in food often prevent the use of a valuable material which might be the means of saving money.

Good food habits are an important part of personal hygiene, and children get such habits by having suitable amounts of suitable foods served to them and then being expected to eat what is set before them.

The economy lies not only in buying wisely but also in making the fullest possible use of what is bought.

THE TABLE.

Plain Sour Milk Nut Cake—Cheap and can be made without nuts: One egg well beaten, one cup sugar, one-half cup melted lard (or butter), one-half cup milk, one-half cup chopped nuts, a little nutmeg or cinnamon, one-third teaspoon of vanilla. Then add one cup rich sour milk in which a level teaspoon of soda has been dissolved. Let foam stir this well, then add two cups (not large) flour and stir.

Patriotic Birthday Cake—One cup sugar, one-half cup butter, half cup sweet milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, whites of four eggs beaten stiff stirred in last. Bake in two tins. Filling: Half cup sugar, two tablespoons butter, one-half cup milk, two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon soda dissolved in three tablespoons hot water. Nuts may be added if desired.

Whipped Cream Substitute—Add a sliced banana to the white of one egg and beat until stiff. The banana will entirely dissolve and you will have a delicious substitute for whipped cream.

TEN INDICTMENTS INVOLVE REGISTRATION VIOLATIONS

The Business of Living

Eleanor Tries to Set a Benighted Neighbor Right on Matters Pertaining to the War.

"I must not waste time sitting here crying because I must give up my home," Eleanor wiped her eyes. "Judge Meldon will be here with his machine to take us to the train in an hour."

"Let me dress."

Margaret, I am used to a little girl and that is one thing I can do to help. Is this her dress?"

"Thank you, yes, here Margaret come quick."

Eleanor began hastily folding Little Margaret's garments that would be needed on the journey to Aunt Laura's farm.

"We learned this morning that my brother is drafted and must go to training camp in September. I feel dreadfully about it."

Mrs. Weeks was buttoning Margaret's dress.

"War is a terrible thing," replied Eleanor.

"He has never had any hardships to bear, and I do not see how he will stand life in a trench, and the things they lie right down in their clothes and sleep."

A smile flitted across Eleanor's face, but her back was toward the speaker. Tom is so particular about everything that he is afraid it will be very hard for him."

"I think he will think very little of minor discomforts when he really is at the front. They have some things else to think about besides personal comfort."

Eleanor's smile was friendly. "I sometimes think we have placed too much stress on life in private life."

"Oh, I don't know," Mrs. Weeks pulled and buttoned Margaret's hair ribbon into shape. "I think there are plenty of people who do not mind physical discomforts. They should have the work of that sort to do as they do in private life, and the gentlemen should be given work that is more important."

Eleanor had straightened herself from her packing and was looking at her neighbor with such an expression that she stopped and red-dened.

"You mean that because a man has had disagreeable things to bear all his life, his government should heap disagreeable things on him?"

"Well, they know how to get along with such things better," stammered Mrs. Weeks.

"No one is properly educated who is not able to bear with courage everything that life brings to him. If the war is a great lesson, a great educator along these lines, it will not be an unlearned evil."

"Why Mrs. Filmore, do you mean that you think it is right to take the fine young men of our land and send them over to Europe to be killed just because they got into a big quarrel over there? We have no part in their quarrels and I think it is awful to force our young men to go and endure such things and perhaps lose their lives?" Mrs. Weeks was flushed and angry.

"I am your friend, I am sure you do not mean that you are disloyal to your country though it sounds that way. Our land was the cradle of liberty and the liberty of the world is in danger could we sit idly by and watch it perish? If you realized what this war meant I am sure you would not talk as you do."

"I know nothing about the war. It is so disagreeable to read about death and wounds, I never do," answered the little creature.

"I thought so, I am sure if you knew what the Germans are doing to helpless women and children; to beautiful works of art like the Reims cathedral, you would be glad we had joined the way to help the allies make the world a safe and happy place to live in."

"It does not make it a very safe place to live, several million people killed off. It does not make it a happy place for me to live in, for instance, if my brother is killed, I am ruined."

"There are plenty of people who are made desolate by this war. People whose whole life's happiness is ruined, but if the happiness of the future generations is made sure, it will pay. There are things that are more important than life and individual happiness," said Eleanor solemnly.

"Can't see things in that lofty way," Mrs. Weeks tossed her head. "Here is the machine with Judge and Mrs. Meldon," called Mrs. Black from the front of the house.

FAREWELL RECEPTION FOR MRS. BRIGHAM

Methodist Church Pays Whole-hearted Tribute to Wife and Family of Former Pastor.

A simple but appropriate and touching tribute to Mrs. Francis Brigham and family was given by the members of the Methodist church last evening in an informal farewell reception held in the parlors of the church.

It was preceded by the regular prayer meeting of the society, where the whole spirit of the occasion, the music and the remarks by Rev. F. E. Lewis emphasized the regret felt by all at the severing of these close ties of fellowship.

The family of Rev. Francis Brigham have endeared themselves to the congregation, not only during his period of service here, but also by the brave Christian spirit shown by them, in their time of sorrow and loss, and the ties holding them to this church are very close and tender.

Mrs. Brigham and her daughters and Mr. Brigham's mother will all be greatly missed in the church circles.

They left at noon today for their new home in Appleton. At the reception last evening the ten girls belonging to the Sunday school class of Mrs. Brigham, served refreshments of fruit punch and wafers to the guests.

A table in the primary room, prettily decorated with white syringas, held the large punch bowl and trays of other refreshments. It has been a time of trial for the whole church society in the great loss sustained by them this past winter, but the mutual helpfulness of all concerned and in tact and sympathetic insight dis-

WITH ARTIFICIAL ARM LEAD COMRADES AGAIN

London, June 28.—When a German explosive bullet, near Ypres last summer, blew away the arm of a Canadian soldier, the arm was replaced by a wooden one.

Lieut. A. E. Batchelor's left arm, the Saskatchewan boys who made up his battalion said good-bye to him as he left for the front for good. Today Lieut. Batchelor is on his way back to his battalion, wearing an artificial arm.

The task of convincing the war office he could handle his old job, he said, was the hardest thing he has done since the war began.

MAGNOLIA

INVITE CHILDREN TO PLAY FESTIVAL

Every Child in City Urged to Attend Festival Given by Chautauqua on Monday Evening.

Every child in Jamesville, and all the parents, are urged to attend the great free play festival on next Monday evening, June 29, at the Chautauqua grounds, which will be the preliminary feature of the Lincoln Chautauqua festival which will be in the city throughout the next week. The festival is unique in Jamesville and has been organized under the direction of play experts who know children and know what appeals to them.

The event will open with an automobile parade through the city for the children. Twenty cars have already been donated for this purpose, but more are needed, and all citizens who will take the kiddies for a ride about the city at that time are asked to communicate with Miss Fay Krots.

Following the parade the actual festival will be held at the Chautauqua grounds on the corner of Main and Locust streets, where the Y. M. C. A. tennis courts are now located. Games of every sort and description and designed especially for every age, will be held under the supervision of Miss Helene Akon, of the Chautauqua circuit. Drills, athletic meets, songs, contests, and a thousand and one other features will be undertaken by the children at that time.

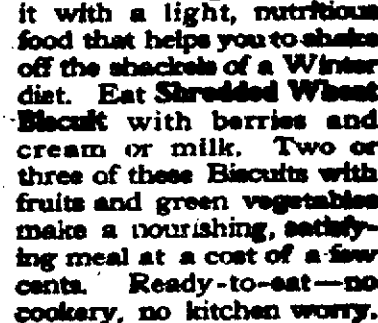

The big historical pageant which will be given later in the week, and which will symbolize the development of the country, requires the services of from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and fifty children for the chorus and group tableaux, and the two fine prizes are expected from the guests at the play festival. All costumes are furnished free of charge by the Chautauqua and the work is carried out under the supervision of expert directors.

A ticket sale contest for the children between eight and fifteen years, inclusive, has been planned and all who wish to enter this in competition will be selected by Miss Akon, of the Chautauqua circuit, 167 South Jackson street, at once. In addition a ticket hunt will be held at the play festival, when a number of tickets will be scattered about the grounds and the children turned loose on the basis of "Anders keepers."

The advance sale of season tickets for the entire week's series of programs has been good, according to the reports today, and an exceptionally successful Chautauqua is expected. There has probably never been a greater offering of nationally famous speakers and artists as will appear here this season, and an appropriate response is inevitable.

The general tone of the Chautauqua is patriotic, and the children's features will reflect this spirit in the various events. Patriotic music, inspiring addresses, and a generally wholesome and inspiring program will constitute this year's Chautauqua.

SIDE TALKS

—BY— RUTH CAMERON

THE WET BLANKET PARENT.

"What an excellent description that phrase 'wet blanket' is, by the way! We say it automatically and forget the wonderful simile it contains. Could anything be more uncomfortable and depressing than coming into contact with a cold, clammy blanket?"

And considering that my little friend's enthusiasm had passed through that process what wonder it had faded in a day?

One of the nicest mothers I know—and so too the busiest—has been squeezing out some extra time to help her little girl get subscriptions in a pony contest. "No," she said, "I don't think she'll get it, and her father thinks it's all nonsense but when she came to me all enthusiastic and wanted me to help I just couldn't bear to be a wet blanket. I know too well what that's like."

Like Pushing a Dead Weight. Another girl who has accomplished quite a little in a rather unusual business told me that every step she took was taken to a family chorus of "You can't possibly do that." "That's no kind of work for a woman." "It will be too much for you," etc.

It was like pushing a dead weight all the time," she said, "and if I ever have any children I'm going to try above all things not to have back. Of course I'll try to give them good advice but I'll give them sympathy and encouragement first."

People Aren't When They Get Older. The next day I met her and asked what her mother said. "Oh mother just said, 'they'll promise anything, when I told her about the carpenter. She sighed, 'Mother isn't very enthusiastic, you know. I suppose people aren't when they get older.'"

The radiance was gone from her face and just picture the way her mother looked when she said that. I know her mother. I know just what kind of a wet blanket she can be.

Isn't "Wet Blanket" A Good Phrase?

The Real
Adventure

A NOVEL

By
Henry Kittell Webster

(Copyright 1916, The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

"For what women want," said Jane. "Economic independence—equality, easy divorce—all the new stuff."

"I'm not against it," Rodney said, "any more than I'm against tomorrow being Tuesday. It's going to be Tuesday whether I like it or not. But that conviction keeps me from crusading for it very hard. What I'm curious about is how it's going to work. When they get what they want, do you suppose they're going to want what they get?"

"I knew there was something deadly about your grin," said Jane. "What are you so cantankerous about?"

"Why, the thing," said Rodney, "that sours my naturally sweet disposition is this economic independence. I've been hearing it at dinner tables all winter. When I hear a woman with five hundred dollars' worth of clothes on—well, no, not on her back—and anything you like in jewelry, talking about economic independence as if it were something nice—jam on the pantry shelf that we men were too greedy to let them have a share of—I have to put on the brakes in order to stay on the rails."

"We men have to fight for economic independence from the time we're twenty, more or less, till the time we die. It's a sentence to hard labor for life; that's what economic independence is. How does that woman think she's set about it, to make her professional services worth a hundred dollars a day—or fifty, or ten? What's she got that has a market value? What is there that she can capitalize? She's got her physical charm, of course, and there are various professions where she can make it pay. Well, and what else?"

"She can bear children," said Jane. "She ought to be paid well for that." "You're only paid well," Rodney replied, "for something you can do exceptionally well, or for something that few people can do at all. As long as the vast majority of women can bear children, the only women who could get well paid for it, would be those exceptionally qualified, or exceptionally proficient. This is economics, now, we're talking. Other considerations are left out. No, I tell you, economic independence, if she really got it—the kind of woman I've been talking about—would make her very sick."

"She'd get over being sick, though, wouldn't she," said Rose, "after awhile? And then don't you think she'd be glad?"

Rodney laughed. "The sort of woman I've been talking about," he said, "would get a gold brick."

Rose poured his coffee with a steady hand. They were in the library now. "If that's so," she said, "then the kind of woman you've been talking about has already got a profession. As Doctor Randolph says, she's cussed in on her ankles. But maybe you're mistaken in thinking she wouldn't choose something else if she had a chance. Maybe she wouldn't have done it, except because her husband wanted her to and she was in love with him and tried to please. You can't always tell."

It was almost her first contribution to the talk that evening. She had asked a few questions and said the things a hostess has to say. The other three were manifestly taken by surprise.

But surprise was not the only effect she produced. Her husband had never seen her look just like that before. The flash in her eyes, the splash of bright color in her cheeks, the exciting timbre of her voice, was new to him and very alluring.

Barry saved him the necessity of trying to answer, by taking up the cudgels himself. Rodney didn't feel like answering, nor, for the moment, like listening to Barry. His interest in the discussion was eclipsed, for the moment, by the thrill and wonder of his wife's beauty. For the next half hour she matched wits with Barry Lake very prettily.

When Jane declared that they must go, her husband protested.

"I haven't managed yet to get a word out of Rodney about any of his things. I want to know how far you've come along with your book on 'Actual Government.' I want the whole thing. Now."

"I've had my fling," said Rodney, with a sort of embarrassed good humor. "There are no more intellectual wild oats for me. Have you forgotten you're talking to a married man?"

On learning their determination to walk down-town, he said he'd go with them part of the way. Would Rose go, too? But she thought not.

CHAPTER XI.

A Defeat.

The gown which Rodney had spoken of apologetically as a coronation robe, was put away; the maid sent to bed. Rose, huddled into a big, quilted bathrobe, and in spite of the comfortable warmth of the room, feeling cold clear into the bones—cold and tremulous, and sure that when she tried to talk her teeth would chatter—sat waiting for Rodney to come back from seeing the Lakes part way home.

She gave a last panicky shiver when she heard his latchkey, then pulled herself together.

"Come in here, Roddy," she called as he reached the head of the stairs. "I want to talk about something."

He had hoped, evidently, to find her abed and fast asleep. His cautious footfalls on the stairs made clear his intention not to wake her. "Oh, I'm sorry," he said, pausing at the door to her dressing-room, but not coming in. "I didn't know you meant to sit up for me. If I'd known you were waiting, I'd have come back sooner."

"I haven't minded," she told him. "I've been glad of a chance to think. But now—Oh, please come in and shut the door!"

He did come in, but with manifest reluctance, and he stayed near the door in an attitude of arrested departure. "It's pretty late," he protested with a nonchalance that rang a little flat. "You must be awfully tired. Hadn't we better put off our pow-wow?"

She understood well enough. The look in her face, some uncontrolled infection in her voice she had meant to keep so even, had given her away. He suspected she was going to be "tragic." If he didn't look out, there'd be a "scene."

"I'm Not Angry," She Said.

"We can't put it off," she said. "I let you have your talk out with the Lakes, but you'll have to talk with me now."

"We spent most of the time talking about you anyway," he said pleasantly. "They're both mad about you. You were a perfect miracle tonight, darling, when they were here. But now, like this..." He came over to her with his arms out.

But she cried out "Don't!" and sprang away from him. "Please don't, Roddy—not tonight! I can't stand it to have you touch me tonight!" He stared at her, gave a shrug of exasperation, and then turned away. "You are angry about something then," he said. "I thought so when I first came in. But, honestly, I don't know what it's about."

"I'm not angry," she said, as steadily as she could. She mustn't let it go on like this. They were getting started all wrong somehow. "You didn't want me to touch you the night when I came to your office, when you were working on that case. But it wasn't because you were angry with me. Well, I'm like that tonight. There's something that's got to be thought out. Only I'm not like you. I can't do it alone. I've got to have help. I don't want to be soothed, and comforted like a child, and I don't want to be made love to. I just want to be treated like a human being."

"I see," he said. Very deliberately, he lighted a cigarette, found himself an ash tray, and settled down astride a spinning little chair. "All right," he said. "Now, come on with your troubles." He didn't say "little troubles," but his voice did and his smile.

Rose steeled herself as well as she could. "We've made a horrible mistake," she began. "I don't suppose it's either of our faults exactly. It's been mine in a way, of course, because it wouldn't have happened if I hadn't been—thoughtless and ignorant. I might have seen it if I'd thought to look. But I didn't—not really, until tonight."

He wanted to know what the mistake was. He was still smiling in good-humored amusement over her seriousness.

"It's pretty near everything," she said. "You've hated the way we've lived—the way this house has made us live. I haven't liked it, really. But I never stopped to think what it meant."

"What it does mean," he said, with a good deal of attention to his cigarette, "is that things are desirable to me now, because I am in love with you, that weren't desirable before. I don't see anything terrible about that."

"There isn't," she said, "when you're in love with me. But you aren't in love with me all the time. And when you aren't, you must hate me for what I've done to you."

His face flushed deep. He sprang to his feet and threw his cigarette into the fire. "That's perfectly outrageous nonsense," he said. "I won't listen to it."

"If it weren't true," she persisted, "you wouldn't be excited like that. If I hadn't known it before, I'd have known it when I saw you with the Lakes. You can give them something you can't give me, not with all the love in the world. I never heard about them till tonight—not in a way I'd remember. And there are other people—you spoke of some of them at dinner—who are living here, that you've never mentioned to me before. You've tried to sweep them all out of your life; to go to dances and the opera and things with me. You did it because you loved me, but it wasn't fair to either of us, Roddy. Because you can't love me all the time. I don't believe a man—a real man—can love a woman all the time. And if she makes him hate her when he doesn't love her, he'll get so he hates loving her."

"You're talking nonsense!" he said again roughly. He was pacing the room by now. "Stark, staring nonsense! I've never stopped loving you since the first day we walked together. And I should think I'd done enough to prove it."

"That's it," she said. "You've done too much. And you're so sorry for me when you don't love me, that it makes you do all the more."

She had found another joint in his armor. She was absolutely clairvoyant tonight, and this time he fairly cried out: "Stop it!"

But she went steadily on. "You were always so dear about it. But tonight—oh, Rodney..." He sat sally, ragged voice choked there and stopped, and the tears brimmed up and spilled down her cheeks. But she kept her face steadfastly turned to his.

"That's what I said about being married and not sowing wild oats, I suppose," he said glumly. "It was a joke. Do you suppose I'd have said it if I meant it?"

Golden Text: And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send and who will go for us? Then I said, Here am I; send me. Isaiah VI. 8.

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

ISAIAH'S CALL TO HEROIC SERVICE.

We know less of Isaiah, the man, than we do of John the Baptist. He too, is a mere "Voice," the most impersonal of the prophets. It seems designed that we shall not be diverted from his message by the minutiae of his life. Yet there are compensations, for his book is the very mirror of himself. We know the kind of a man it took to produce it and feel acquainted with him in spite of the scantiness of biographical data. We lose our hearts to this at once loftiest and lowliest, most imperious and yet most persuasive of all the seers of Israel.

This solitary among the prophets had, as was fitting, a most unique introduction to office. Nothing more apt could be imagined. Once while in the temple rapt in thought and devotion, the Person of God was so impressed upon his consciousness that it became, as it were, something objective to his senses. The picture took the form of royal state, with which this companion of kings was familiar; an exalted throne vestments of light, weird and winged figures peopled the air and made it vocal with antiphonal ascriptions. Jehovah's train, a sweeping garment, vast and white, filled all the courts of the temple. All spangled courtiers with their regalia and insignia seem tawdry and eclipsed; monarch's gems and victor's wreaths are common dust; in comparison, high on the still air comes the seraphic chant with celestial accompaniment. The flame-bearers, their very forms as brilliant as the lamps they bear, illuminate the scene. The titanic embodiment of the forces of the universe wait there beside the throne to aid the creator's pleasure in any or all worlds he has made.

To the prophet's overtaxed eyes the most solid parts of the temple swing in rhythm with the seraphic anthem. He breathes the aromatic vapor of a sweet odor, the incensed atmosphere of heaven. The whole earth is full of God's glory. The universe is one crystal chalice brimming and sparkling with the effluence of the Divine. Human language in the hand of the seer, a prophetic comes as near as it may in describing the ineffable glory and majesty of Jehovah's person and court.

But the prophet is not looking just for entertainment at some miracle-play or celestial moving-picture. Most practical ends are aimed at. The first is to effect a subjective preparation. The vision is an X-ray on the prophet's soul. It is as if all his sin of every sort from his whole life and being was collected upon his lips like a victim laid upon an altar, while from the high incense-table a red-hot stone is brought and laid upon the extemporized altar of the prophet's lips. All moral putrescence is eaten away as by a powerful cautery. A great spiritual emergency is now revealed in that which the Revelator saw when the cry was raised in heaven, "Who is worthy to open the book?" It is borne in upon the consciousness of Isaiah as if in audible voice that the Lord needs a messenger and this is answered by a sense of readiness which enables him to cry, "Here am I; send me!"

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Isaiah evidently intended the phrase, "In the year that King Uzziah died" as a chronological note. As such it is not very satisfactory for us however it may have been at the time it was originally used. But it serves another purpose. The dead king is in antithesis to the King who never dies. God lives in spite of the mutations of terrestrial things. Kings and kingdoms have died, but he is the same and changes not. And further, God is the only real sovereign, whose pleasure, willingly or unwillingly must be done.

Sense of the reality of God is certain to be accompanied with sense of sin. Obscuration of the moral vision is all that makes indifference to sin possible. Conviction of sin and repentance for sin are the most real, important, practical and fruitful experiences of which the soul is capable.

Isaiah accepts his commission though no promise of success, no assurance of human sympathy is given. He might well anticipate the contrary. He would find the people unwilling to do as he had just done, confess, submit to cleansing and enlist for service. It is perfectly psychological that the prophet should weave his later experiences as a messenger into the original commission as he received it from Jehovah.

Isaiah's response, quick and loyal, "Here am I; send me!" has become the favorite formula, univer-

Dinner Stories

At a dance in a certain town a visitor to the place got into conversation with an elderly gentleman. Presently the younger man said, pointing to a lady across the room, who was smiling pleasantly in his direction:

"I wonder if that dreadful looking woman is actually trying to flirt with me."

"I don't know," the elderly gentleman answered mildly, "but I can easily ascertain for you. She's my wife."

The town clerk, sitting at his desk at the city hall, was asked by a lady if she might use the telephone. Upon leaving she put a nickel on the desk.

"There is no charge, madam," said the clerk.

"Oh, but you must take it," said the lady.

"I'd rather not," said the clerk, very seriously. "You see, if I accept this money it becomes the property of the city. I must then make report of it to the auditor; he must report it to the treasurer, who will take the money. Then there will be other lengthy reports about it; and will entail about $10 worth of work. Do me a favor and take it back."

"You are very kind," said the lady. "Not at all," said the clerk. "I'm only lazy."

"Am I the first girl you ever loved?" sighed the maid.

"You certainly are not!" proclaimed the youth.

"This was hardly what she had been brought up to expect, so she became really interested."

"I am not," she repeated. "You are not. You are merely the best of the bunch. Are you satisfied with that?"

WISCONSIN WILDS OFFER OPPORTUNITY FREE TO SPORTSMEN

That is no idle song, neither is it an expression that the seriousness of the war has not struck us. In the view of a prominent Milwaukee sportsman.

It is his view that the imminence of the war is all the more reason for "roughing it" in Wisconsin wilds for a few weeks or days—if that be all the time available—especially among the "young bloods" who are of service age. A vacation, to him, offers means of preparing for physical exertion of military training.

And the state of Wisconsin—land of lakes—offers a multitude of vacation sites. There are hundreds of tracts of land on the beautiful northern Wisconsin lakes available for lease, either by the year, season or number of years.

Vital county exceeds all other counties of the state by far in these sites. The region adjacent to the states two chief railroads is particularly adapted for outings of short or indefinite periods. Tracts of one to five acres can be leased for periods of one to five years at low cost and islands are subject to lease up to twenty years.

The method of securing such land follows: Ask the state conservation commission at Madison for a map of the region. Pick the general location which you prefer, then notify the commission of your desire for some tracts in the vicinity and large scale blueprint will be sent you showing individual lots, with information as to the fishing and hunting possibilities of the region. Select the lot you wish and ask the state for a formal lease. This applies to the five year leases.

If you wish the camp site for a single year, this information will be given you, and specific regulations for the care of such tent or portable house sites. These rules differ for various portions of the state and of the various state parks. The annual cost of land leased for the five year periods ranges from $10 to $50 per year, according to the locations and size of the site leased.

The plan of rental for a long time lease is simply that of taking a lease with the state as lessor. There is no deposit fee, merely the annual payment of the rental. A deposit, according to location, is equivalent of those leasing single season or camp or portable house sites in the state parks. This is to guarantee that the grounds will be left in a clean and orderly condition, and returned if the sites are not desired. These sites will not be reserved unless occupied. They may not be sublet. Rental of a tent site is fifty cents a week or fraction thereof and portable house sites are ten dollars per year. These figures may vary slightly according to the state park chosen, these figures being of the Devil's Lake State park.

No form is necessary to secure a reply in inquiries about state lands.

If application for such land is made through Chicago and Northwestern railroad agencies it is simple to direct the inquirer to land most readily tributary to the railway lines. However, all land in the state forest reserve is tributary to the railway.

VOLUNTARY MILITARY COMPANY TO DRILL DURING THE SUMMER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., June 28.—An attempt is being made to establish a military drill company during the summer at the University of Wisconsin. The company will be purely voluntary and will drill for two hours each day. No class room work will be given, and the training of the company will be in the hands of Sergeant W. G. Atkins, U. S. A., retired, aided by student cadet officers. The withdrawal early this month of Major C. F. Crain and Captain W. J. Fitzmaurice, commandant and assistant, the plan of continuing during the summer the intensive military courses for company officers which was given last semester, was abandoned, as the government could spare no more officers in the active service to take charge of the course.

DEFENSE COUNCIL LISTS MEN FOR HARVESTING COUNTRY'S WAR CROP

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Wausau, Wis., June 29.—Hundreds of men are volunteering their services for harvesting work on farms when the time comes. When farmers need aid there is little question but what they will be supplied. Through the efforts of the Marathon county council of defense men are being signed up in factories and offices who are willing to go into the fields and "do their bit" at harvesting time.

SELL BREAD BY WEIGHT IN MILWAUKEE SHOPS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Milwaukee, Wis., June 29.—The bread ordinance which requires sale of loaves by weight will be tested when the first arrest for violation is made. The ordinance permits the sale of either pound or half pound loaves and requires the use of the best ingredients. Arrest of violators is up to the city sealer of weights and measures. Only about one hundred of the city's three hundred bakers have signed their intention of baking the required pound loaves.

AFTER AERO RAIDS ENGLISHMEN GATHER TO TALK ABOUT IT

Folkestone, Eng., June 29.—After the German aeroplanes finished bombing this town in the raid which killed seventy-four the survivors gathered in knots at the street corners and told each other about it. It was just like the aftermath of "experiences" occurring in any American town after the tornado has wiped out Main street.

A theatrical manager producing a musical show had his "beauty chorus" lined up to rehearse a big "number." The familiar sound of bombs sent the girls into panic. With their skirts pinned above their knees they flew for the single stage exit.

In time to prevent a serious stampede the manager blocked the door lined up the girls and marched them to the lawn of a public square.

"Lie flat on the grass," he ordered. "Keep calm. If you're going to be hit by a bomb you can't dodge it but the bricks won't find you out here." The girls obeyed while explosives crashed around them. The show had no casualties, though bombs tore up nearby streets.

In a busy street an ex-sergeant, veteran of raids at the front, took command of the crowd. He commanded everyone to lie down in the middle of the street. Then he patrolled the block to enforce his commands. Bombs struck all around but most of the people escaped injury.

The manager of a neighborhood store told of waiting on four little girls just before the raid. The moment they stepped outside a bomb roared in the middle of the pavement, killing them all. The store manager, uninjured, rushed out and carried them into his store. One dead child still hugged her packages of groceries.

Hearing the first bomb a block away, a butcher grabbed a woman customer around the waist and rushed her into the vault. Ten minutes later in the jumbled wreckage of the butcher shop she was thanking the butcher for saving her life.

One German was injured, probably fatally. He had lived in town twenty-five years and had many friends there. Soldiers showed more "war sense."

and less recklessness than the civilians. Almost to a man they snatched themselves, flat wherever they happened to be and thus escaped showers of deadly fragments cast up by impact bombs. Civilians learned a lesson from them.

Military officers believe the Germans dropped a number of time bombs, arranged to explode just above the heads of the crowds. These scattered thousands of shrapnel balls as well as jagged metal fragments. A retired sea captain, sitting in the sun at his cottage door, made up his mind to pay no attention to the raid. But a shrapnel ball knocked the book out of his hands and dozen others peppered the wall behind him. His onion garden was blown into the air but he escaped injury.

MANY STUDENTS ENROLL FOR THE SUMMER SESSION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., June 29.—More than 2,200 students enrolled in the summer session at the University of Wisconsin during the first three days and a few more are registering each day. It is expected that the final enrollment will probably reach the 2,500 mark, which is a normal number, although it does not meet the high mark set by last year's enrollment of 3,144.

MEETING OF OFFICERS OF WOMEN'S ORGANIZATION

There was a meeting of the officers and heads of committees of the First District Federation of Women's clubs held on yesterday afternoon at the library. The president, Mrs. O. C. Colony, and secretary, Mrs. Axtell, both of Evansville, were present. Others from out of the city who were here to attend the board meeting were Mrs. McGinnis of Edgerton; Mrs. Taylor of Waukesha; Mrs. Davis of Delavan, and Miss Gaarder of Oshkosh. Mrs. Helms of this city is chairman of the civic committee and also a member of the board.
